YEHLE D.G. CO. BUYS STORE BUILDING

PAYS $30,000 FOR PRESENT WEST THIRD STREET PLACE.

TO REMODEL UPPER FLOOR

Will Put in Plate Glass Front Duplicating First Floor—Gives 6000 Feet More Sales Space

The Yehle Dry Goods company today purchased the building on West Third street which they have occupied for the past fourteen years from W. C. Frank and G. B. Roseberry, paying $30,000.

The building occupies a three story space with a 66 feet frontage and depth of ninety feet. The dry goods company will now occupy both floors and as soon as the materials can be obtained, they will begin work on the second floor making it ready for the carpet, drapery and wall paper department.

An entire plate glass front duplicating that of the first floor will be built in the second story. The entrance will be from the inside and the first floor will be arranged to accomodate this change. The second floor will be thrown into one big display and sales room giving a floor space of over 6000 square feet. It is the intention of the company to enlarge on the lines already carried and to establish new lines in different sections of the store.

For some time past the carpet and house furnishing section has been greatly cramped for space as well as other departments of the store. The new arrangement will probably not be completed before fall and at this time an entire re-arrangement of the sales department will be made. The work will be begun at once and if there is not great delay in obtaining building materials the building will be complete by September first.

C. W. Yehle, president of the firm, has been with this company for twenty three years, entering as a clerk with the firm whic hwas then owned individually by C. J. Alderman. A few years later Mr. Yehle purchased stock in the firm gradually taking on more and more, until he purchased all of Mr. Alderman's stock, who went out of the company several years ago. The Alderman name was eliminated last fall when Mr. Yehle and L. B. Tracy purchased the stock of M. J. Alderman and Mr. Tracy was elected secretary and treasurer.

The new building when completed will be one of the finest mercantile establishments in northwest Missouri and the stocks carried will be up to the high mark set by the firm during the years it has been in business.

GIVE METHODIST CHURCH THOUSAND DOLLAR MEMORIAL

Children of Mrs. Mary Josephine Honnold Make Gift to Church Their Mother Loved

In memory of their mother, Mrs. Josephine Honnold, whose death occurred last fall, Mrs. Lela Honnold Bellows and Dr. Fred C. Honnold of Chicago have presented to the First Methodist church of this city, a thousand dollar investment bond paying a semi-annual six per cent dividend, the dividend to be used in purchasing music for the church choir.

Mrs. Honnold was one of the most loved members of the First Methodist congregation. During the long years of her residence in Maryville, she took a loyal and active part in the work of the church, giving it her support in every way.

When her health failed and she was unable to give active service Mrs. Honnold gave of kindliness and good will all that her spirit could give until the last of her life.

Both she and her husband, John W. Honnold were identified with the Methodist church from the time they first took up their residence here, which was many years before the present church was built. Mr. Honnold was superintendent of the Sunday school and the progress of the Sunday school and church at that time was largely due to their efforts. They lived in Ravenwood for a time and both gave the same loyal support at the Methodist church there during their residence.

Mrs. Honnold was a lover of music and especially enjoyed that part of the worship and for that reason the gift of her children to the church is to be used for this purpose.

The memorial was presented to the church by Dr. G. S. Cox at the service yesterday morning.

RICHMOND B.B. TEAM WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

TAKES NORTHWEST H. S. ASSOCIATION HONORS SATURDAY NIGHT

PLAY GALT FOR FINAL

Seventeen Teams in Two Days Tournament at State Teachers College Engage in Fast Contests.

Richmond 39—Galt 12

The fast Richmond high school basket ball team cinched the Northwest Missouri high school association championship title from the Galt high school team Saturday night, defeating them 9 to 12. The winning of Galt from Maryville in the first game of Saturday afternoon by a score of 25 to 22 and the victory of Richmond from Hopkins in the final game by a score of 39 to 22, gave the championship contest to Galt and Richmond. Seventeen teams from the northwest high school association were entered for the tournament and some mighty fast games were played on the State Teachers college court.

The Galt quintet played excellent ball in the afternoon but were low on supply of pep in the final, owing to the hard game played with Maryville in the first half of the afternoon. The championship game was not fast and because of the worn out condition of the Galt boys, Richmond did not have to put their best licks in the game but won easily. The Richmond boys circled the first basket and Galt held the lower tally throughout the game. The Richmond team in Whitman have an exceptionally good guard and center. His floor work was excellent and he made 19 tallies for his squad. Marshall and Detwiller played excellent, their splendid passing featured. Richmonds two defensive men, Mason and Grimes deserve much credit for holding down the scoring of the Galt quintet. The squad considered as a whole is a scrap py bunch of players. Croy and Huston of the Galt Squad seemed unable to repeat their good playing of Saturday afternoon. Galt threw no free goals out of eight trials and Richmond made 3 out of eleven trials. Nine personal fouls were called on Galt and 5 on Richmond. At the end of the game all but one of the Galt team playing were substitutes.

The line-up follows:

Richmond

TOWN STAGE SET READY FOR SHOW

BAND PLAYS AND CURTAIN RISES AT 7:30 TONIGHT

LOTS OF 'THINGS DOING'

Every Store Keeper Joining to Make First Spring Opening a Big Success.

The big stage which includes Maryville's business section is all set and ready for the big Spring Opening and Style Show which begins at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The curtains of all business houses will be raised at that hour to usher in a week of special merchandising displays and an exposition of spring goods, participated in by all merchants of the city. This special display will continue until Saturday night.

The band will play up and down the streets during the entire evening and there are all sorts of novelty shows to be given. At the Yehle dry goods store a fashion show on living models will be given. The Haines store will keep open house from 7:30 till 9 o'clock. There is to be numerous other events and "things doing" which have not been previously announced.

All day the store windows have been swathed in sheets and curtains giving the house the appearance of a home with the family gone for the summer.

A peek around the edges indicated there sure was to be some nifty showings tonight when the band tunes up.

The Men to Be in Style.

The style heads are always telling women they inherit this mode from Cleopatra or Rameses or some other aristocratic mummy. The Corwin-Murria and Montgomery-Cummins Clothing companies don't make any secret of the fact that they inherited their new spring styles of men's clothing from the best eastern firms, by the exchange of fifteen thousand dollars. All the style goes on Antony could flaunt over the Egyptian Adonis' was the drape of his toga. Wouldn't he have longed for one of those handsome serge suits, the colorings and patterns are very new, and these new silk shirts with the soft pretty stripes no women's shop could show more perfect taste in selection of patterns than these stores have to display this week. Who ever said a Style Show was just for women anyway. These windows are to be marvels of men's style tonight and DON'T YOU LOSE OUT.

Get and Be Happy.

No one could be serenely happy with an interior that feels as if it had engaged in a set-to with a Hoover Vacuum Cleaner and the Townsend grocery company is going to look after that happy feeling all week. And the eats and eats and eats that are to be displayed. But then the Orear drug store is close and the Maryville Drug company is on the corner and the supply of sassafras bask is unlimited.

And the Little Ford Rambled.

The time it rambled all to pieces in the window of the Barmann auto company. A dissembled Ford, that means a Ford all parted from its bunking mates, so that the entire construction can be examined, is the main attraction. Through this means the Barmann company will show visitors everything belonging to the Ford cars illustrating the machanism completely.

A Style Show wouldn't be half a go if the Eversole & Son Dry Goods company wasn't in the orchestra circle. For how many years is it that the senior member of the firm has been showing the women of Nodaway county the best of styles? No wonder the women have the reputation of being well dressed. The bug hunting a berth in the public's ear says to take a big long look tonight at Eversole's.

Invitation to the Motor Show.

It all depends on your temperament—the kind of a motor car you like best, but you will have to see them all at the big Style Show this week. If you are keen for late style, there is a new military sport model Chandler to make its bow tonight at the Maryville Motor company on South Main street. There are other models also. At Murray's there is a whole fleet of those aristocratic Buicks that gives one a millionaire feeling just to look at. John Sewall has a bevy of Overlands all ready that he will put through a motor fox-trot exhibition every day for the pleasure of visitors at his garage. S. R. Lowry is showing some beautiful new Oaklands and Harry Kerr the newest models of Oldsmobiles. You know how it is, each thinks their baby and their car is the finest in the world and the only way to do justice to the motor show is see them all.

To "Walk Over" the Crowd.

The Bee Hive wants to "Walk Over" you all this week. Honest fact, if the firm had a chance they would put "Walk Over Shoes" or some other of the nifty styles they carry on every one. The curtain of the big window has been down all day, not even a peep hole left. Some one told some one else they saw the toe of a pink silk stocking so there must be something attached to the toe.

A Fairy Fountain

When you walk down South Main street and get to the corner of Third you shut your eyes and then open them again real quick like the fairy tells good little girls to do. You will see the most wonderful fountain with gorgeous lights glinting through the spray like a thousand little rainbows doing a water dance. Wake up, you aren't in fairy land. You are in front of the Price & Sons furniture store and you are going to see the loveliest window that you most ever saw in your whole life when the curtains go up at 7:30 tonight.

A New "Beauty" Factory

"Little daubs of powder, little daubs of paint, make a thing of beauty of a thing that aint" and if any woman honestly thinks she is an "aint" she may come to D. E. Hotchkins and be made an "is". He has installed a toilet goods department in the store as a new temptation for women and is making a special display of it this week. And Johnny's marbles and some other spring necessities will also be shown.

An effort is being made to reduce materially the prices of the cuts now in heavy demand by showing consumers the advantage of turning to those which are equally nutritious but which cost much less.

"POLLYANNA"

Easter Bells

by T. C. Harbaugh

They ring again, the bells of earth,
Beneath the stars that hailed the birth
Of Judah's King, where softly lies
Fair Bethle'em mirrored in the skies;
From out the land of rose and palm,
From Galilee's immortal calm,
Their wondrous music mounts and swells,
For seraphs ring the Easter Bells.

The lilies in their robes of snow
Within the chancels bloom and glow,
The roses lift their heads to see
Once more the spot on Calvary.
And rose the Lord, death's fetters riven,
To wear again the crown of Heaven;
While o'er the country, far and wide,
Earth hailed its first glad Eastertide.

Fair Kedron's brook that seeks the sea,
Reflects the smiles of Galilee;
The lily in her beauty blooms
Beside the saintliest of tombs;
And "He Is Risen!" far and near
The angels chant for earth to hear,
As louder still the cadence swells
Of Heaven's holy Easter Bells.

O'er earth the hymns of love and peace
Bid every cankered sorrow cease,
And Memory's music sweetly stirs
The emerald crests of Lebanon's firs;
The stars of Easter brightly shine
Upon the groves of Palestine;
And where He trod the darkened ways
Soars Easter's endless chant of praise.

I hear the notes that grandly rise
To meet the anthems of the skies,
And higher yet the paean swells
Till all earth hears the Easter Bells.

The REAL EASTER LILY

Which is the real Easter lily? Is it the lily of the valley, "the pretty pond lily," the majestic calla or the modest modern flowers that all men admire and most men buy in celebration of the greatest of religious festivals?

To what kind of flower did Jesus refer when in the Sermon on the Mount he spoke of the "lilies of the field," which, though they neither toiled nor spun, outdid King Solomon in the beauty of their raiment.

It has been popularly supposed that the lily of the valley was the one meant. That such was the case, however, seems unlikely if only for the reason that this plant does not grow in the fields. It is peculiarly an inhabitant of carefully cultivated gardens, producing its bell-like blossoms in shady corners.

Not at all probable does it seem that Jesus may have had in mind the calla lily, which, having originated in Ethiopia, was familiarly known in Palestine at the period in which the Savior lived. The Egyptians used the roots of the prolific plant as a table vegetable. These roots look somewhat like Irish potatoes, and in the swamp the calla grows so thickly that the yield of a single flooded area is enormous.

Calla Not True Lily.

Botanically speaking, however, the calla is not a lily. Tulips are truer lilies, and so likewise are the leek, the garlic and the asparagus. But the calla is an "arum" and is related to the "jack-in-the-pulpit," as well as the "elephant's ear plant," commonly grown as an ornamental.

Lilies have always had sacred association. Back in the dim ages of the past, when the pyramids were building, the Egyptian priests chose the lotus, a member of the lily family, as the symbol of their religion. It was regarded as an emblem of the Nile, symbolizing the creation of the world from the waters. In India Buddha is fabled to have made his entrance into the world seated on a lotus blossom.

In Catholic countries the lily is sacred to the Virgin Mary, because it is a symbol of purity. The angels painted by the old masters frequently carry lilies in their hands. And legend tells that, when the disciples looked into the tomb of Jesus after the resurrection, it was filled with lilies.

The lilies that appear in the paintings of Murillo and other old masters are not calla. They are of the familiar Easter lily type, and are easily recognizable as the Madonna or annunciation lily—the latter name being given them because of the belief that the angel of the Annunciation appeared to the Virgin Mary with these lilies in his hands.

This kind of lily, sometimes called St. Joseph's lily, was widely cultivated in Europe in early historic times. It seems to have originated in Palestine or somewhere about that region, and so may well have been the flower to which Jesus referred. Under cultivation it grows in fields, which at the time of blossoming are a veritable sea of bloom.

Real Easter Flower.

This, however, is not exactly the modern Easter lily. The latter, though nearly related, is a different variety brought originally from Japan to Bermuda, and is known as the "longiflorum" or trumpet lily." In Bermuda, through a horticultural accident, was developed what gardeners call a "sport," a subvariety remarkable for early blossoming, hardiness, height and the size and large number of flowers, also for the ease with which it may be "forced" in hothouses.

In 1875 a woman of Philadelphia, returning from Bermuda, brought with her two plants of this improved stock and gave them to a florist of the Quaker city, who, perceiving the great value of the variety, proceeded to multiply the bulbs. He introduced the lily to public notice seven years later, giving a small exhibit of the plants. Other horticulturists were quick to secure specimens for propagation, and today the Lilian Harrisii, as it is called, holds the market exclusively.

Bermuda is the original home of the early variety. While it is still winter in the northern part of the United States, fields of onions and potatoes are carpeting the Bermudas with a green and luxuriant promise of coming wealth for the farmer, while here and there, even during March, fields of blooming lilies spread a feast for the eye. But to the grower of the little archipelago the Easter lily is merely an incidental crop, supplementing the onion and potato. Culture of it is wholly by hand, in pockets of rich soil among the rocks.

May Raise Own Lilies.

In June the Easter lily bulbs are dug in Bermuda and shipped to the United States, packed in sawdust or excelsior. They are then planted by American florists in pots, and at the proper time, many months later, are brought into the hothouses to be forced for the Easter market. Hitherto we have been obliged to depend entirely upon Bermuda for our Easter lilies, but there is reason to believe that before long plentiful supplies of them will be grown in southern Florida and California. Incidental to experiments in this direction, a number of valuable new varieties have recently been created by the government plant bureau.

The lily of the valley is regarded as an emblem of purity and modesty. It is a native of temperate latitudes in Europe and Asia, and in the garden is one of the earliest of spring flowers. Nearly all of the lilies of this kind grown in this country are raised from "pips"—root shoots—imported from Germany, Holland and France, where they are produced by the million for export. On arriving in the United States they are put into refrigerators, or otherwise kept cold, so as to suspend their vitality—the object being to force them into bloom as they are required for market. In this way gardeners are enabled to offer the blossom for sale the year around.

A Sheeplike Vegetable.

A curious plant growing in Peru is known to the native as "yareta" or "vegetable sheep." It grows abundantly among rocks at high altitudes along the Andes of Bolivia and Peru, where it constitutes a conspicuous feature in the landscape because of its peculiar manner of developing the so-called "polster," or cushion formation. The "yareta" forms hillocks or small mounds often three feet high and sometimes several feet in diameter. Moreover, the entire mound is made up of a single plant, not of a colony of individuals, and it attains this enormous size and extreme compactness by a process of repeated branching, so that the ultimate branches are closely crowded and the outer surface is continuous. The flowers of the "yareta" are very thin, only about one-eight of an inch long, and are borne in small clusters near the tips of the branches. The fruit resembles a miniature caraway seed. The natives use the plant as fuel.

MANY IRISH NAMES IN CUBA

Signs on Some of the Most Noted Havana Streets Reflect a Transplanted Aristocracy.

There are many curiously named streets in Havana, but perhaps the interest of the tourist is no other way so piquantly excited as when he sees the name O'Reilly attached to one of the old thoroughfares. The cognomen surely has no suggestion of Castilian origin, remarks the New York Evening Post.

Despite the name, the man for whom O'Reilly street, or to give it its Cuban title, Calle O'Reilly, is called, was a Spanish subject bearing the title of count, and he was one of the first of the long line of captains general who ruled Cuba for a period of 80 years. His ancestors left their native heath after the battle of the Boyne, migrating to Spain, where they were ennobled for services to the crown.

Although an aristocrat, the first O'Reilly was not averse to becoming a moneymaker. He engaged in the not very poetic monopoly of delivering beef from the slaughter houses to the various markets, which monopoly was handed down for several generations from father to son.

O'Donnell is another Irish name inscribed on street signs and it is written in great letters on the lighthouse of Moro castle, which lighthouse O'Donnell was instrumental in building. O'Farrell is an Irish-Spanish name connected with the governmental and commercial life of Cuba of the past, as is also that of O'Lawlor. These men had titled prefixes which were bestowed because of military or civil service, or which they bought outright after the custom of the time.

HEARD OWN BURIAL SERVICE

Dying Millionaire Had What Might Be Called a "Rehearsal" in His Bedroom.

When Mr. Parker Mason, a shrewd and level-headed millionaire of the United States, was on the point of dying a few years ago he conceived the quaint idea of having a rehearsal of his own funeral service in his bedroom. He called in a Presbyterian minister, and a few members of the church choir, and the full service was rehearsed in his presence and that of his family and a number of his friends. The clergyman preached an eloquent and touching sermon on the virtues and charities of the dying man, and the choir sang appropriate hymns. At the conclusion of the service, which the millionaire had followed with the closest interest and attention, he warmly complimented both clergyman and choir on their performance, and after dismissing them sent for an undertaker and made the necessary arrangements with him and had a personal interview with the pall-bearers. He died ten hours later, and was buried with the same service to which he had listened when alive.—Montreal Herald.

Where the Fault Lay.

As the Irish police recruit strolled along on his first turn of night duty, loud yells of "Fire" rent the air. He bolted quickly to the spot, and found a house well alight, with a man half hanging out of an upstairs window.

"Help! Help!" he yelled. "If I jump, will you catch me?"

"Sure, an' Oi will!" replied the policeman readily.

So the man jumped, only to crash to the ground and lie there stunned. When, a few minutes later, he recovered consciousness, he looked up at the constable reproachfully, and murmured feebly:

"I thought you said you could catch me?"

"Begorrah!" replied the Irishman. "Oi was only waiting for yez to bounce, an' Oi'd have had yez!"—London Answers.

Egyptian Women Prospering.

The fellaheen of Egypt, for centuries the most ignorant and improvident of serfs, has ridden into prosperity on the tidal wave of reconstruction, and with him his long-suffering wife. Still, as in the days of Christ, one may see him on his donkey, while his wife, with her heavy burden on her head, trudges behind. Yet there is a real, if invisible change in their relations.

Through the sudden rise in the price of cotton from $20 to $100 a kantar since the beginning of the war, the housewife has been enabled to make long-neglected purchases and has been enabled to display her native shrewdness in bargaining and financial matters. It is she who markets all the products of the farm.

Guns on Airplanes.

One of the inventions of the great war was the art of shooting a machine gun through the propeller of an airplane without danger of hitting the propeller blades. The French aviator, Roland Garros, was reported to be the first man to employ this device, which was used by hundreds of air fighters throughout the war. Before that time the machine gun was mounted above the aviator so as to fire over the propeller blades. Machine guns may also be mounted in a revolving turret or in the rear of the airplane. The Browning machine gun will fire 20,000 shots at the rate of 600 per minute.

Pottery-Making Simplified.

An inventor has patented an electrically driven machine which makes the rough clay boxes in which pottery is subjected to heat in kilns, work heretofore done slowly by hand.

FLOEBERG NOT AN ICEBERG

Former Yellow and Dirty in Color; Latter Ordinarily Brilliant White With Streaks.

While floebergs often are of great size, they are much different from icebergs, Rene Bache writes in the Philadelphia Public Ledger. They are yellow and dirty-looking in color, while icebergs are ordinarily a brilliant white, with ultramarine streaks. The streaks are pure ice, while the white parts are largely solidified snow.

Floebergs are formed in the bays along the coast of Labrador, where ice is blown shoreward and piled up, sheet on sheet, during the winter. When summer comes the masses thus formed are liable to float out to sea. An iceberg is composed of fresh water, frozen. A floeberg is frozen salt water.

The crew of the steamer Androscoggin, of the United States coast guard, experimented in blowing up icebergs with shells and mines, but both attempts failed. The shells merely made white spots, and were shattered, while there was nothing that the mines could be attached to to do damage. In addition ships could not come close enough to the bergs without danger from the floating mountains to make careful investigation for the placing of the mines.

IS AIRMEN'S PATRON SAINT

Michael, With His Wings and Spear, Is Peculiarly Qualified for That High Position.

It was the wing of St. Michael, chief of the archangels and head of the celestial militia, which Jeanne d'Arc heard, they say, whirring about her in the little garden of Domremy when she had her softly spoken but insistent call to arms. And now, as if it were not enough to be the one who called Jeanne d'Arc from Domremy to Rouen, St. Michael is also the patron saint of aviators, because he heads celestial warriors and battles in the air.

In a London church on Spanish place—the church to which King Alfonso went when he was there—there is a new stained window with an airplane mosaicked into its design, and that window is dedicated to St. Michael, patron saint of airmen.

St. George met his dragon on the earth, but St. Michael battled with the devil and his angels in the celestial spaces and threw them out of heaven. With his wings and his spear he was the great prototype of the armored airplane, and it may be that even the inspiring Jeanne d'Arc did not satisfy him and that he has always kept in his mind this time when men should fly and fight as he did.—New York Evening Post.

THE production of crude oil is, in itself, a highly specialized business.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) recognizes this fact and leaves to others the drilling of wells, the operation of pipe lines, and the other activities incident to the production, storage, and transportation of petroleum.

It buys its requirements of crude oil on the open market and pays the market price.

The business which engages the attention of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is the manufacture, distribution, and sale of the products of petroleum.

The Company goes into the oil fields and buys the Crude it wants from whoever has it for sale. In this way the Company is able to select with care the raw material it uses, and is not hampered in its endeavor to render greater service by being tempted to use crude which is not exactly suited to its needs.

By devoting all of its time to the business of refining and marketing, the Company is able to fulfil its obligation to the public by supplying petroleum products of the highest known standards—to maintain at all times a uniformity of quality—and to manufacture in such volume and in such variety of forms—as to enable it to sell these products at a low price.

TO "CONQUER AND DESTROY STATE," U. S. COMMUNISTS CALL FOR LABOR REVOLT

Revolutionary Pamphlet, Found in U. S. Department of Justice Investigations, Gives Message of Communists in Chicago to Russian Headquarters.

Extracts from "Manifesto and Program—Constitution—Report to the Communist International" by the Communist Party of America, Chicago, Ill.

Communism does not propose to 'capture' the bourgeoise parliamentary state, but to conquer and destroy it. As long as the bourgeoise state prevails the capitalist class can baffle the will of the proletariat.

In those countries in which historical development has furnished the opportunity, the working class has utilized the regime of political democracy for its organization against Capitalism.

The older unionism was based on the craft divisions of small industry. The unions consisted primarily of skilled workers whose skill is itself a form of property. The unions were not organs of the militant class struggle. Today the dominant unionism is actually a bulwark of Capitalism, merging in Imperialism and accepting State Capitalism.

The proletarian revolution comes at the moment of crisis in Capitalism, of a collapse of the old order. Under the impulse of the crisis, the proletariat acts for the conquest of power, by means of mass action. Mass action concentrates and mobilizes the forces of the proletariat, organized and unorganized; it acts equally against the bourgeois state and the conservative organizations of the working class. Strikes of protest develop into general political strikes and then into revolutionary mass action for the conquest of the power of the state. Mass action becomes political in purpose while extra-parliamentary it form; it is equally a process of revolution and the revolution itself in operation.

The Communist Party is the conscious expression of the class struggle of the workers against capitalism. Its aim is to direct this struggle to the conquest of political power, the overthrow of capitalism and the destruction of the bourgeois state.

The Communist Party prepares itself for the revolution in the measure that it develops a program of immediate action, expressing the mass struggles of the proletariat. These struggles must be inspired with revolutionary spirit and purposes.

The Communist Party is fundamentally a party of action. It brings to the workers a consciousness of their oppression, of the impossibility of improving their conditions under capitalism. The Communist Party directs the workers' struggle against capitalism, developing fuller forms and purposes in this struggle, culminating in the mass action of the revolution.

The Communist Party shall make the great industrial struggles of the working class its major campaigns, in order to develop an understanding of the strike in relation to the overthrow of capitalism.

(a) The Communist Party shall participate in mass strikes, not only to achieve the immediate purposes of the strike, but to develop the revolutionary implications of the mass strike.

(b) Mass strikes are vital factors in the process out of which develops the workers' understanding and action for the conquest of power.

(c) In mass strikes under conditions of concentrated capitalism there is talent the tendency toward the general mass strike, which takes on a political character and manifests the impulse toward proletarian dictatorship.

In these general mass strikes the Communist Party shall emphasize the necessity of maintaining industry and the taking over of social functions usually discharged by the capitalists and the institutions of capitalism. The strike must cease being isolated and passive; it must become positive, general and aggressive, preparing the workers for the complete assumption of industrial and social control.

(a) Every local and district organization of the Party shall establish contact with industrial units in its territory, the shops, mills and mines—and direct its agitation accordingly.

(b) Shop Committees shall be organized wherever possible for the purpose of Communist agitation in a particular shop of industry by the workers employed there. These committees shall be united with each other and with the Communist Party, so that the party shall have actual contact with the workers and mobilize them for action against capitalism.

The Communist Party must engage actively in the struggle to revolutionize the trade unions. As against the unionism of the American Federation of Labor, the Communist Party propagandizes industrial unionism and industrial union organization, emphasizing their revolutionary implications. Industrial Unionism is not simply a means for the everyday struggle against capitalism; its ultimate purpose is revolutionary, implying the necessity of ending the capitalist parliamentary state. Industrial Unionism is a factor in the final mass action for the conquest of power, as it will constitute the basis for the industrial administration of the Communist Commonwealth.

(a) The Communist Party recognizes that the A. F. of L. is reactionary and a bulwark of capitalism.

(b) Councils of workers shall be organized in the shops as circumstances allow, for the purpose of carrying on the industrial union struggle in the old unions, uniting and mobilizing the militant elements; these councils to be unified in a Central Council wherever possible.

(c) It shall be a major task of the Communist Party to agitate for the construction of a general industrial union organization, embracing the I. W. W., W. I. L. U., independent and secession unions, militant unions of the A. F. of L., and the unorganized workers, on the basis of the revolutionary class struggle.

The Communist Party shall encourage movements of the workers in the shops seeking to realize workers' control of industry, while indicating their limitations under capitalism; concretely, any movement analogous to the Shop Stewards of England. These movements (equally directed against the union bureaucracy) should be related to the Communist Party.

The unorganized unskilled workers (including the agricultural proletariat) constitute the talk of the working class. The Communist Party shall directly and systematically agitate among these workers, awakening them to industrial union organization and action.

NEW TASKS FOR WEATHER BUREAU

Problems of Serious Character Must Be Faced.

VALUE OF SERVICES GROWS

Passing of Wartime Conditions Finds the Bureau Up Against Problems More Serious Than Difficulties Imposed by War—Plans to Make Serbia Useful in Aeronautics—Value in Military Operations Demonstrated in Late War.

With the close of the fiscal year and the passing of war conditions the weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture finds itself face to face with post-war conditions of more serious character even than the difficulties imposed by the war, says the annual report of the chief of the bureau, an extract of which is given below.

Applied meteorology as never before in history has come to be recognized as a highly important factor and guide in the conduct of almost every activity of any consequence of the nation. Never before in any previous war did the science of meteorology play any important part or have a place in the program of military and naval organizations and operations. Now it is regarded as indispensable and is destined to become a permanent feature of each arm of the service.

Created in 1870 as a part of the signal corps of the United States army by a joint resolution of congress "to provide for taking meteorological observations at the military stations in the interior of the continent and at other points in the states and territories of the United States and for giving notice on the northern lakes and on the seacoast, by magnetic telegraph and marine signals, of the approach and force of storms," its network of stations soon embraced the entire United States.

Designation Changed.

Subsequently the designation of the service was changed to the weather bureau, which by act of congress approved October 1, 1890, was transferred from the war department to the department of agriculture and its functions extended to cover the entire domain of meteorology, including the duty of preparation and issue of forecasts and warnings of weather, storms, cold waves, heavy snows, floods, and the stages of rivers, all in the interest of commerce, agriculture, and navigation.

At present it maintains over two hundred fully equipped meteorological stations, and about 1,400 substations classified as special meteorological, river, storm-warning, hurricane, marine, cotton region, corn and wheat region, fruit, cranberry, and frost warning stations. In addition to these the bureau maintains, in connection with its climatological work, about 4,500 stations known as co-operative stations, the equipment being furnished by the bureau and the observations being taken by public-spirited citizens who render gratuitous service. Its co-operative work extends to practically every ocean of the globe, and the masters of many vessels (the number was greatly reduced by the war, but is now on the increase) fill out forms of daily meteorological observations on every voyage, to be forwarded on arrival in port. Before the war daily observations received by cable and otherwise from selected stations over the entire northern hemisphere were collected and published. Negotiations to restore this exchange are under way. A highly trained, efficient, and experienced personnel of over 800 commissioned employees, helped by about 1,400 who receive a small compensation for the regular performance of specific duties, conducts the work of the bureau, and in addition the marine and co-operative observers constitute a host of nearly 6,000 public-spirited individuals who serve gratuitously. Such, in brief, is the machinery and organization of the weather bureau.

Dr. R. Q. King of Maitland will be a guest tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Burris.

BRAVE MEN AND OTHERS.

"I'm fond of brave people," said old Cap'n Bill.
"I like to hear tell of adventures that thrill.
I take off my hat to the men of the past,
Who felt the ship sinkin' an' stuck till the last.
But when I see folks that jump in where it's deep,
And laugh as the treacherous waves 'round them creep,
There's one class of humans I say could be spared;
The people who haven't the sense to be scared.

"A man who has fought in the trenches will run
When he sees a fool friend start to play with a gun,
The stanchest and steadiest seaman afloat
Is afraid of a summer boy rocking a boat.
The man who is fittest to plan and to serve
Is the one who knows danger and braces his nerve.
The worst of the hardships in life are prepared
By people who haven't the sense to be scared."

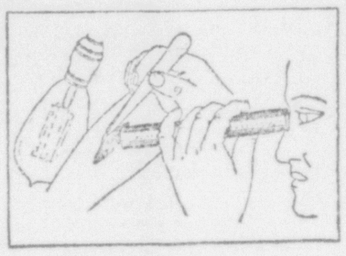
MAKES SURGICAL WORK EASY

Recent Invention Quickly Locates the Presence of a Foreign Body in Human Tissues.

The difficulty often encountered in attempting to remove foreign bodies from the tissues is well known, writes Dr. A. G. Bettman of Portland, Ore., in the Journal of the American Medical association. Even when Roentgenograms are at hand or when Raroscopy has been done, there is frequently great difficulty in removing the foreign body.

By the use of transillumination any foreign body that will cast a shadow may be located in a surprisingly short time.

Having cut down to the supposed location of the foreign body and having arranged the light, the operator looks through a tube at the tissues, which may be held up or otherwise suitably manipulated. A dark room is unnecessary. When once the foreign body is located, it is a simple matter to remove it.



The Operator at Work.

The tube may be of any suitable material, brass or other metal or a darkened test tube; a roll of paper may be used in an emergency.

The angle at which the tube is used may be varied to meet conditions.
